FAMOUS CATERER HAS TURNED AUTHOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Joseph Lyons, a famous English caterer, who provides the Lord Mayor's annual banquet and controls more than a hundred restaurants, has arrived in this city to find a publisher here for a fanciful tale which is his pride. His story, "The Master Crime," caused a sensation in Great Britain when it was published. It purported to show how easy it would be to break the Bank of England.

Seven years ago Mr. Lyons caused some stir in the London restaurant world by opening a cafe in Piccadilly, in which no tips were allowed. It was a great success.

The boat will run at night, picking her way down the Illinois and Mississippi rivers by searchlight.
